High School Chatter

Well, here we go again with the chatter of old A. H. S.

Girls, did you know that we had so many good looking boys? Well, Thursday was the time to discover it. They all looked wonderful in their neckties and suits.

Some of the girls are already getting ready for basketball, but Mr. Bragg doesn't like to get the basketballs dirty! Does he, Barbara and Barbara Ann?

Boys, follow Mr. Walker's advice and Mr. Bragg won't have to lecture anymore.

Mr. Hudson, does your girl friend like Maude's food?

We surely missed Lois, Barbara Ann, Helen Mae, Bill, Sam, Kenneth, Katherine and Rebecca last Monday. They were in Lynchburg selling ads. I hear they are doing swell!

Was the movie good last Thursday night, Fleetwood and Betty? I heard it was; I just wondered what you thought.

The boys aren't the only ones that looked handsome Thursday. The teachers looked wonderful.

Students, don't shudder, but did you see Mr. Kerr bringing report cards aroond Friday? Woe is me!

Oh, we saw Peggy and Sam together again. Lucky Peggy!

We are planning to have in this column a personality each week. So, put on your thinking cap and do some guessing.

We are analyzing a very charming young lady this week. She has dark hair, brown eyes and is approximately 5' 6" tall. She was a basketball cheerleader last year, and is a football cheerleader this year. She is business manager of the annual and she also is very much interested in the University of Virginia. Oh, I've told you! I'll see you next week and reveal this charming young girl's name.

By the way, I'll see you Friday night at the Canteen. Adios, muchachas!!

Young Executives Parlay $10,000 Into $1 Million

CHICAGO — Four youthful executives, atomic physicists who helped develop the original A-bomb project at the University of Chicago, have run a $10,000 investment to more than a million dollars with a company that designs and manufactures nuclear gadgets.

The company's products range from machines costing upward of $10,000 down to small portable Geiger counters in the gadget-toy classification. The concern also processes for industrial and medical use the atomic-generating raw materials produced by the government atomic plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The four youthful executives are James A. Schoke, 26, president; John L. Kuranz, 28; Thomas E. Mitchell, 27, and Emil W. Hinspater, 39, vice-presidents.

Going through the factory and laboratories is like taking a peek at the awesome future. Complicated testing apparatus, wiring setups and precision tools face one from every direction. Precision is so refined employees and visitors may not even wear radium-dial wrist watches in some areas.

Makes Nuclear Toys

Consumer-type goods, those available to "just folks" that the company produces, so far are pretty much confined to portable Geiger counters for experimentation or for prospecting for uranium ore.

The smallest of the company's Geiger counters is one being aimed at the forthcoming Christmas trade by a toy maker and distributor. It is enclosed in a cabinet which looks like a school lunch bucket, yet is claimed to be fully adequate to trace uranium ore deposits or lost radioactive materials.

It will be offered for two markets. The "boy" trade, starting at the age of nine, can use it in specially designed games. Older boys and adults can use it for various types of actual experimentation in radioactivity. The company has a manufacturing capacity of 500 of these sets a day and expects to produce 15,000 for the toy company.

The company has a more complicated counter which is sold by a large mail-order house. Ten thousand of this design will be produced.

New School Study

Soon to be in production is a static eliminator for newspaper presses. At present, the friction of rapidly moving paper in modern high-speed presses builds up so much static electricity the machines would stall if it weren't removed. To eliminate the static, presses now are equipped with a series of gas flame jets, the heat of which relieves the static condition.

The company's device will consist of a strip of radioactive isotopes which will serve the same purpose as the flame without the fire hazard and fuel expense.

A little more on the technical side is a classroom demonstrator called the "classmaster." This is aimed at adding a fourth "r" to the proverbial three in high schools, colleges, universities, namely radioactivity.

recently drove over a portion the Virginia Skyline Drive. A part of this famous mountain way—but the color was a fabu- thing and there is yet time for of so who so desire to see harvest colors of nature.

Coloring is not as old as some things. In the Bible the sky mentioned 430 times, but not a of the blue color there. The iterranian Sea has perhaps the gorgeous blue coloring on th, but Homer in the Illiad and yssy did not mention it. The nese word for blue is hi-u-an— originally, it meant black. Our lish word "blue" is from the man "blau" and originally that meant black. Over 2,000 years the wonderful Aristotle lived. spoke of the three-colored rain- Xenophanes, who lived a cen- ahead of Aristotle, said the nbow had three colors: purple, low and red. Surely, in all the chless fields in which our world moved forward, few are more ghtful than in the development language—to give us the mean- ful differences and shades and ices branching from major cate- ries of meaning. The colors of rainbow are to be found in the rd: VIBYGOR. Violet, indigo, , yellow, green, orange and On each side, unseen, are ultra olet and infra red.

And now in a Virginia fall, we ry in the colors of nature. The th of summer can bring delight the senses. As subtle shivers steal ross the scene, a trace of white call frost, the smouldering m of dogwood forsaking its mmer robes, the green of earth ding to the fires of autumn and the sassafras setting the pace — , woe, indeed, is the one of 47 us who is color blind. Glory to ose who like Isiah proclaim the rlasting light.

I have seen several football games boxing matches recently over levision. And therefrom comes bit of comment. You lose the "in- ay." In a baseball game you thrill a home run—but a pitcher's ttle is lost. Inning after inning of hits and no runs does not carry television appeal. And so we may an even livelier ball. And in xing, you miss the in-fighting. The viewer decides close contests favor of the slugger. The smart xer and in-fighter does not regis- with a television audience of ymen. And the same goes for line ay in football. I am a country itor, but I can tell you the van- ge seat from which to watch a otball game: get a seat on the pper deck away up behind the end ne and with a pair of good field asses observe the line play. I saw great team play once, the last of the great undefeated Notre Dame teams of Knute Rockne. Carridio, Savoldi, Brill and Swartz. And the eat line in front of them. Verily, believe one so puny as I could ve waddled through for a first wn, untouched and undefiled, if the boys up front opened up the thway to glory. There is still, as now, a place for the fan at the ngside, in the stadium and on the seline.

Gov. Battle Visited Here

Governor John S. Battle was a visitor at the McLean House at Old Appomattox Court House last Friday. The stopped over to inspect the famous scene of peace in 1865, and was shown overr the National Park Service property by Superintendent H. A. Gurney. The Governor was especially interested in the room at the McLean House to be furnished by the State of Virginia. He further recalled the success of the Dedication of the building here April 16, in which ceremonies he participated.

Observance of Education Week Planned

Mr. Ivey Holland, president of the Appomattox School P.-T. A., announces that the celebration in honor of National Education Week will be observed Monday night, November 6, in the local school auditorium. Dr. Abner Robertson, executive secretary, will be the guest speaker, using as his topic, "Fathers are parents, too."

Jimmie Harris, a high school junior, will lead the devotional exercises, after which there will be choral selections by the music classes.

The elementary grades will dramatize skits from some of their favorite book stories. The characters will begin in the first grade with some of the Mother Goose people, and continue through the seventh grades. They are as follows:

The two first grades will portray Alice in Wonderland and Little Boy Blue. The two second grades, Little Gingerbread Boy.

The two third grades, Red Riding Hood and Hiawatha. The two fourth grades, Manners Can Be Fun and Johnny Appleseed. The fifth grade, Mother Goose and Wee Gillis. Sixth grades, Adam of the Road and the Five Chinese Brothers. Seventh grades, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch and Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn.

Following this program, open house will be held in each of the rooms where class work will be on display. The home economics teachers will serve refreshments in the cafeteria. All patrons are invited to attend and the public is welcome.

Health Department Advises on Whooping Cough

"Your child can be protected from whooping cough by the use of anti-serum available for the immunization of youngsters," according to Dr. L. J. Roper, State Health Commissioner, as he advised parents not to take this communicable disease lightly.

"Since whooping cough is particularly dangerous for babies the need for early protection against it is undisputed. Research has shown that preventive treatment may safely and effectively be given at the age of two months or earlier. Older children who have been previously immunized should receive booster doses of the vaccine."

Pointing out that Virginia had 3,054 cases of whooping cough in 1949, Dr. Roper reminded parents that whooping cough is sometimes fatal to young children. It may also leave the lungs and other affected parts permnently damaged.

"In an effort to control whooping cough emphasis is placed upon the great importance of calling the family physician at any time when a child is not in normal health. If the first signs of a cold do not disappear after a few days of good home care, including rest in bed and isolation from other children, the physician should be called as the cold in itself may be dangerous. The physician will prescribe proper treatment and report any cases of communicable disease to the public health officer who will attend to the quarantine procedure as required by state law," concludes Dr. Roper.

Food prices soon may go even higher.

Hallowe'en Was Enjoyed; And Safe!

A quiet Hallowe'en was observed here Tuesday night. A P.-T. A. festival was held at the high school and attracted a large crowd. The program and entertainment made for an enjoyable evening.

Mayor G. B. Buchanan deputized all members of the Volunteer Fire Company as special police Tuesday night, and the firemen, with the fire truck patrolled the town, kept all paraders moving and the result was to limit damage to the traditional soaping of windows. In the rural areas there were several reports of RFD mail boxes being grounded.

County 4-H Clubs Producing Winners of State Contests

Jay Stewart

Lynwood Pelot

Appomattox County is gaining a reputation as the home of winners.

During the past ten years, about 20 4-H Club members have climbed to the top in state agricultural and home economics contests.

This year, Appomattox has its share of winners and will be well represented at the National 4-H Club Congress, which begins November 26 in Chicago.

Mildred Mann's name has been appearing with regularity on the 4-H Honor Roll the past few years. This year she copped state awards in the laundry contest.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Mann, Jr., Mildred has progressed from "being scared to death" when she gave her first demonstration, to an outstanding ability as teacher and demonstrator. She has, since becoming a 4-H member, given 65 demonstrations, reaching over 600 people.

She has earned almost $175 in prize money and has saved her family around $200 a year by doing the ironing. "Ironing is a hard job for a big farm family like ours," she says, "and what I have learned about easier methods will help me all my life .... the new way of ironing compares with the old way like cooking on a fire place compares with cooking on a new electric stove."

Then there is 14-year old Lynwood Pelot, Jr., who lives in the town of Pamplin. He counts poultry, safety, and "better methods electric" among his completed 4-H Club projects; but it was in home beautification that he won his first in the state contest this year.

Lynwood approached his problem practically. He drew a plan of the yard, and studied types of plants that would be best suited. Then he went to work. Now his home looks like a professional landscaper's dream. The roles plants play, according to Lynwood, are "wind-break, soil-holders, or just for beauty."

In his safety project, Lynwood says, for instance, "I have learned to make our home much safer by painting step treads a color that can be seen easily—and by watching for anything that might cause fires."

Jay Stewart, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Stewart, turned to tractors—and won first in the state maintenance contest this year.

His knowledge pays off on the family farm, which is geared to the best possible use of the land in an intensified farming program. "Each year," he says, "during the slack season, I go over the tractors, clean and adjust parts such as brakes, clutch, and steering assembly, and replace all worn or damaged parts. This annual check-up, coupled with regular maintenance service, has eliminated breakdowns and provided dependable tractor service."

Jay also has completed during eight years of club work, projects in dairy, hogs, small grain, and safety. His profits have reached the sum of over $2,975. He also was awarded the American Farmer's Degree through his work in F. F. A.

Their culinary abilities at making "eggs a la goldenrod" won state first in the poultry consumption contest for Lora Wilbun and Shirley Walton. This was the first time around for the 15-year-old girls—the first time they have entered any contest outside of Appomattox County. As their award, they received all-expense-paid trips to the Northeastern Poultry Producers Exposition in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, in October.

Another top Appomattox 4-H'er, Charles Andre Harvey, won a 1950 oil company scholarship to V. P. I. He will receive $100 for each of his four years in college.

Charles also is an F. F. A. member, and says the two clubs combined helped him and his family improve the farm at least 50 per cent. He counts livestock, crops, and forestry among his completed projects.

As awards, Mildred Mann and Jay Stewart receive trips to the Club Congress in Chicago, and Lynwood Pelot receives a gold watch.

The Extension Service personnel in Appomattox—who guide the young 4-H'ers—are Farm Agent R. B. Hudgins; Assistant Agent Reginald Speir, and Home Agent, Ella S. Anderson. And, they say, "We're proud of them."

A. H. S. Plays At Schoolfield

The Appomattox High School football team will play this Friday night at 8:00 o'clock at Schoolfield. Coach Gordon Bragg hopes to have his team at full strength for this game. The Junior Varsity lost a 13 to 0 decision at Lovingston last Friday.

Portrait of Dr. Christian To Be Unveiled

Under the heading of "flowers to the living," will be a ceremony here this Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock when an oil portrait of Dr. D. A. Christian, II, will be unveiled at the county court house. The public is invited to attend this event and thus join in paying honor to one of Appomattox's most beloved citizens.

Dr. Christian is still an active practicing physician, but his friends felt that his 43 years of service to the public should be recognized, and that a fitting testimonial would be the placing of an oil painting of him in the county court house.

The portrait is the work of Miss Mary Frances Cheatham, local artist. It will be unveiled by three grandchildren of Dr. Christian, Sue Ann Thompson, Kristin Koos and Mary Cathryn Christian.

Judge Joel W. Flood and State Senator Chas. T. Moses will make the presentation and acceptance for the county.

A portrait of Dr. Christian's father, the late Judge D. A. Christian, already hangs in the court room.

The Christian family is unique in that so many of its members have been associated with the medical profession. His grandfather, the late Dr. Wm. D. Christian, was a beloved doctor. His son, Dr. David A. Christian, III, is a doctor. A daughter, Mrs. Harold Thompson, is a former medical technician. Another daughter, Miss Cathryn Christian, is a medical technician at the Medical College of Virginia. And another daughter, Miss Joice Christian, is a pre-medical student at Wellesley College. His newphew, Dr. Thomas Jennings, is a senior at the Medical College of Virginia, and Dr. Jennings' wife is a doctor. The late Dr. Wm. Albert Thornhill was a beloved physician, of Charleston, W. Va., and he was a double first cousin of Dr. Christian. And, Dr. Wm. Albert Thornhill, Jr. is practicing in Charleston. Another cousin was the late Dr. Carroll James, of White Plains, N. Y. Other more distant kinsmen have followed the medical profession.

Among members of Dr. Christian's family here and who will attend the ceremony Saturday, are: Mr. and Mrs. George Koos, Jr. and two daughters, Kristin and Kathryn, of Tangent, Oregon; Mrs. Harold Thompson, and daughter, Sue Ann, of Natick, Mass.; Miss Joice Christian, a student at Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.; Mrs. Worth Harris, of LaCross, Florida; Lt. (J. G.) and Mrs. David A. Christian, III, and daughter, Mary Kathryn, of Quantico, Va. (Dr. Christian, III, is stationed at the Marine Base; Miss Cathryn Christian, of Richmond, and Chesley Christian, of Appomattox. Others expected from out of town: Mrs. K. H. Sisson, Mrs. J. H. Elder, Mrs. Edwin Pauli, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wheeler, Mrs. Wesley Higgins, Mrs. J. H. Elder, Jr. and two sons, all of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Gilliam, of Dillwyn; Mr. and Mrs. Parks Jennings, of Stonewall; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Christian, of Covington, and William J. Byerly, II, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

All those who desire to join in this testimony to a beloved citizen are urged to be present promptly at 3:00 P. M. this Saturday at the court house.

To Present Gold Baseball

During the recent baseball season the Mutual network broadcast a "Game of the Day" over its affiliated radio stations. A contest was conducted by each Mutual station to name an "Average Baseball Fan." For Radio Station WWOD, of Lynchburg, the fan selected was Mr. W. B. Caldwell, of Appomattox.

In recognition of his selection, on behalf of the Mutual Network, this Friday at 12:30 P. M. Calvin Robinson will present during his weekly Appomattox Newscast a gold baseball to Mr. Caldwell.
